II.1.6) Description/object of the contract:

The European Central Bank (hereinafter 'ECB') intends, by way of a negotiated tender procedure, to contract 2 private banks operating in the field of wholesale banknote trading (hereinafter 'ECI Banks') to run a pilot Extended Custodial Inventory programme (hereinafter 'pilot ECI programme') for euro banknotes on 1 site each in east Asia for a period of 1 year.

Under an ECI programme, cash — in this case euro banknotes — is held by a designated wholesale bank on a custodial basis in a segregated vault. The Deutsche Bundesbank (hereinafter 'BBk') will act as the national central bank supplying the euro banknotes on behalf of the Eurosystem. For all euro banknotes in transit between the BBk and the ECI Bank and held in the ECI Bank's segregated vault/areas a claim of the BBk for payment against the ECI Bank is created. The amount of this claim varies on a day-to-day basis depending on the ECI Bank's cash transactions with the BBk and the ECI Bank's customers. The account held by the ECI Bank with the BBk will be debited only when the ECI Bank sells euro banknotes to its customers, and will be credited when the ECI Bank buys euro banknotes from its customers. The ECI bank arranges the transport and pays all transport costs between the BBk and its vault. The ECI Bank has to report on the origin and destination of the banknotes sent and received, sort the banknotes for fitness, authenticate the banknotes and report on the counterfeits detected.

The ECI account and ECI securities account will be held with the BBk. The ECI Bank will arrange all transport and pay the related costs of banknote transport between the BBk and the ECI site. The ECI Bank will be allowed to store/have in transit euro banknotes totalling a maximum of EUR 200 000 000 and must ensure that the risks of its becoming insolvent or of non-payment, damage, theft or robbery of banknotes held by it are fully covered up to that amount for the duration of the contract. This will be achieved by providing the BBk, as the beneficiary, with eligible collateral (as defined in Guideline of the European Central Bank of 31.8.2000 on monetary policy
